

Prof. Harish Kumar

Archives : True Platform for Research in humanities and documentation an analysis

Rajkeeya Mahila Mahavidyalay, Salempur, Deoria (U.P.) India

Received-17.03.2025,

Revised-23.03.2025,

Accepted-30.03.2025

E-mail: drharishgkp@gmail.com

Abstract: Archives are organized collection of historical records and document. Typically maintained by institution like libraries, University government and museum. Archival research is a type of research which involves seeking out and extracting evidence from archival Records. There records may be held either in collecting institution. Such as libranian and museum as in the custody of government body. They serve as a platform for research and documentation in the following ways.

Key words: Research, documentation, analysis, organized collection, historical record, archival Record

Archives store original material such as letten, manuscript, photo, government records maps, andio-visual materials and digital files. They are primany source that provide first hand evidence as historical events making them invaluable researcher.

Archives home original and verified document they offer authentic and credible information researcher can trust the material as accurate representation of the part.

Archives are widely used by historian student, scholars, journals, legal professionals. they provide the foundational materials need to create there books, documents and policy decision.

Archivs reflect the idenilty, heritape and evotution of societies, organization and institution. They help preserve collective memori and ensure transperancy and accountability, Archives can restore unpublished material, This makes them a treasure trove for in deptah research that goes beyond what's on the interest modern digital archives make it easier for people around the world to access valuable document online widening the scope of research.

Sir Henry Jenkinson of UK has done remarkabale research and wrote a book on ' A manul of Archives Administration 1922'. He wrote about the principle about provenance and sanctity of original order. Jenkinson argued that archivest should be neutral custodian responsible for preservation and protection of records without alternating or interpretation. He distinguished archives from historical manuscript. Stressing that archives are creasted originallaly through the course of administrative activity giving them a special envidenial value.

Since the archives has provided such a fruitful ground for cultural studies it will not come as a surprise that a number of prominent scholars have made attempt to conceptualize it. french philosopher and historian of ides Michel Foucault is considered by many to be one of the pioneers in this field and his concept archive has become a reuniting references in scholarly studies. yet this is rarely accounted for Foucault employs archives in several ways. This is in itself neither unusual her dubious but in fact symptometric of foucault's general approach to concepts. His concepts one formed and shaped less as building blocks of a systematic theory. that as tools for the analyst of a given phenomena or for the intervention into a particular potical issue. then the term archives as an elaborated concept of as a mere name or world. that is an more or less precise reference to a given historical institution.

REFERENCE

1. Studies on archives and history – T.R. Sareen
2. Autobiograbhy of archive- Nicholar B. Dirks
3. A Hardwork on archival studies – Easwaran Puthiyilliam
4. Archives and Museum.
5. Archives keeping – V.C. Reblication .
6. Archives and archiving in the 21st century- Radmice saran.
7. Guide to the records in the national archives of india-III N.A New delhi 1972
